SUBJECT: Interagency Group on Pacific Basin Project (U)

At recent meetings of the ASEAN countries and their Pacific dialogue partners (Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Japan and the United States), the eleven countries agreed to consult on Pacific matters at a ministerial level on an annual basis, with a senior working level group to meet between the annual sessions to discuss specific items for ministerial attention. The countries agreed that the first such item for follow-up attention would be Human Resources Development in the Pacific region. (C)

In light of those agreements, the President has determined to create an interagency group, under the chairmanship of the Department of State, to coordinate United States activities with regard to the follow-up actions. This group will focus on the issue of human resources development, including the development of a questionnaire and responses to such a questionnaire in order to provide a factual basis for the consideration of further actions. The group will not become involved in trade issues or other economic issues under the purview of
